A LIVING ORGANISM

In God's word, the church is referred to as "the body of Christ." In as much as the church is Christ's body, it is not so much an institution as it is a living organism. The analogy of the church to a body leads us to three important observations.

First, we observe that, as a body, the church must have a head to direct, guide, and control its various functions. Paul tells us that "Christ is the head over all things to the church, which is His body..." (Eph. 1:22-23). Just as the physical body operates in obedience to the directive impulses of the brain, so also Christ's spiritual body, the church, operates in obedience to Christ's directives as recorded in His inspired word. When the body fails to obey its head, the result is chaos and confusion. This is true of the spiritual body as well as the physical body. God is not to be blamed for religious division. Religious division is simply the result of man's failure to live under the headship of Jesus Christ. Keep in mind that our "God is not a God of confusion, but a God of peace" (1 Cor. 14:33).

Next, we observe that, in addition to a head, a body must have members that work together harmoniously. Each member of the body has an important function. When even the smallest member of the body fails in its assigned task, the whole body suffers. As a finely-tuned organism, members of the body must work together in a way that promotes the common good (1 Cor. 12:12-27).

Finally, it should be observed that, as the body of Christ, the church must be unified. Disunity among members frustrates the purpose and design of the body. Christ's fervent prayer was that His followers be joined together in unity (Jn. 17:20-21). Upon what basis shall we unite? The only basis for true unity is found in placing ourselves under the headship of Jesus Christ. Living in submission to His word is the only foundation upon which we can unite as faithful members of His body, the church.
