DO WE KEEP THE TEN COMMANDMENTS?

Not long after their deliverance from Egyptian Bondage, God made a covenant with the Jewish people on Mt. Sinai. The Lord said to Moses, "Write down these words, for in accordance with these words I have made a covenant with you and with Israel" (Ex. 34:27). The text goes on to tell us that "he wrote on the tablets the words of the covenant, the Ten Commandments (vs 28). Intended to be their religious and political guide, the covenant God made with the children of Israel on Mt. Sinai, included the Ten Commandments.

The Law of Moses was a temporary measure designed, in part, to preserve the nation through which the Messiah would come to bless the world. Paul described the Law as a "tutor to lead us to Christ..." (Gal. 3:24). Then, he adds, "But now that faith has come, we are no longer under a tutor" (vs. 25).

In Colossians 2:14, Paul describes the Mosaic Law as having been nailed to the cross. Again, Romans 7:6, he tells us that "we have been released from the Law...." In the next verse, he identifies the Law from which we have been released as the Ten Commandments (cf. Ex. 20:17). Many are surprised to learn that we are no longer under the Ten Commandments.

Although nine of the ten commandments are repeated and amplified in the New Testament, we follow them, not because they are part of God's covenant with Moses, but because they are part of our covenant with Jesus Christ. The only one of the ten not mentioned in the New Testament is the command to remember the Sabbath and keep it holy. While the Christian's day of worship is connected to the resurrection of Christ on the first day of the week, those who insist on following the Ten Commandments are also obligated to worship the Lord on Saturday rather than Sunday (cf. Gal. 5:3).

Actually, the discussion is moot if you are a Gentile in as much as God's covenant with Moses, including the Ten Commandments, was made exclusively with the Israelite nation. It pointed toward the coming fulfillment of God's promise to Abraham and the bringing it of a better covenant – one that included all nations.
