TRUE FREEDOM

This time of year, our thoughts drift in the direction of freedom. Independence Day marks our own nation's declaration of freedom from those under whom we had been subjugated. But, a declaration does not automatically bring freedom. There is often a struggle required in the pursuit of freedom. This is true in the history of our own nation and it is true also in regard to our spiritual freedom.

Freedom comes at a price. "Redemption" is the biblical term that comes to mind when we talk about freedom. Christ purchased our freedom through His death on the cross (Eph. 1:7). Formerly "slaves of sin", we are set free when we become "obedient from the heart" to the teaching of the Gospel (Rm. 6:17-18). Jesus spoke of discipleship and spiritual freedom as a direct result of continuing in His word (Jn. 8:31-32).

But, many have misunderstood freedom as a license to sin. The evidence of such is overwhelming. Absence of moral restraint leads to tragic bondage. Peter spoke of those who promised freedom but were, themselves, "slaves of corruption." Then, he added, by way of explanation: "for by what a man is overcome, by this he is enslaved" (2 Pet. 2:19).

Declare your freedom. But, keep in mind the fact that freedom is often couched in a warning. Paul says, "For you were called to freedom, brethren; only do not turn your freedom into an opportunity for the flesh..." (Gal. 5:13). Likewise, Peter says, "Act as free men, and do not use your freedom as a covering for evil..." (1 Pet. 2:16). A closer look at these passages reveals that true freedom is found in loving service to God and one another.
