FAITHFULNESS

God requires faithfulness of His people. To those who are "faithful until death", He promises "the crown of life" (Rev. 2:10). In a world of compromise, we must remain faithful. But what is faithfulness?

At its core, faithfulness involves uncompromising loyalty, unselfish devotion, and undying love. In many ways, it is like the attitude we are called upon to bring into the marriage relationship. As members of the Lord's church, Christians are married to Jesus Christ (Eph. 5:22-32). This implies certain responsibilities not unlike those found in marriage.

Loyalty is essential in marriage. Without it, faithfulness cannot exist. The bride of Christ must be completely loyal if her husband is to enjoy first place in all things (Col. 1:18).

How is such loyalty expressed? In unselfish devotion. Our loyalty to Christ must be expressed by a steadfast devotion which places Christ before everything and anything the world has to offer. There is no earthly pleasure or pursuit so important that Jesus should be relegated to second place. Jesus must be Lord of all if He is to be Lord at all!

Such devotion and loyalty arise from a heart filled with undying love. We love because we have first been loved (1 Jn. 4:19). The love of Christ kindles a fire of loyalty and devotion in the service of the Lord (2 Cor. 5:14-15). Faithfulness will not be shallow where it has arisen from such love.

But, in a more observable sense, faithfulness is known by the work it accomplishes. God has called His people for the purpose of good works (Eph. 2:10). Faith is useless where no good works are produced (Jas. 2:20). But, why do we perform good deeds? The shallow faith operates from guilt and insecurity. The stronger, deeper faith is motivated by love and devotion. The former often leads to frustration. The latter cultivates true joy and peace.

God does not call us into a life of unfulfilled drudgery. Instead, He calls us to steadfast devotion and faithfulness to His cause. Remember, the victorious will be "the called and chosen and faithful" (Rev. 17:14).
