THE BIBLE: A BOOK WITH NO EQUAL

Peter wrote about God’s inspired word, saying, “So we have the prophetic word made more sure, to which you do well to pay attention as to a lamp shining in a dark place, until the day dawns and the morning star arises in your hearts. But know this first of all, that no prophecy of Scripture is a matter of one’s own interpretation, for no prophecy was ever made by an act of human will, but men moved by the Holy Spirit spoke from God.” (2 Peter 1:19–21) The word of God is not the product of man’s wisdom, but the result of divine inspiration. The uniqueness of the Bible is based on its inspiration.

The Bible is unique in its continuity. From Genesis through Revelation, the story of redemption majestically unfolds with clarity and beauty. At first glance, we may think of the Bible as a single volume when it is actually a library of 66 different books. These books were written over a period of approximately 1,600 years by about forty different inspired authors.

Still more astounding is the fact that these authors wrote from diverse backgrounds and circumstances. Moses was a political leader, educated in all the learning of the Egyptians. Yet, he wrote from the wilderness while leading God’s people to the Promised Land. Peter was a fisherman, uneducated and untrained by the standards of the world. Amos was a herdsman. Joshua was a military leader. Nehemiah was a cup-bearer to the king. Daniel rose to the position of prime minister and wrote from the palace. Luke was a physician who probably wrote his books while traveling on various missionary journeys. Solomon was the wealthiest king of his time and, for that matter, of any other time. Matthew was a tax collector, despised by his own countrymen. Paul had been a Jewish rabbi, a Pharisee of the strictest sort. Much of his writing was done from the cell of a Roman prison. John wrote the book of Revelation while in exile on the island of Patmos. So, as you can see, the Bible was written from many different lands, in many different times, and in many different circumstances.

Our point is this: while the subject matter of the Bible includes many controversial subjects, there is still an indisputable harmony and continuity throughout. Someone has said, “The ‘Paradise Lost’ of the Genesis becomes the ‘Paradise Regained’ of the Revelation. Whereas the gate to the tree of life is closed in Genesis, it is opened forevermore in Revelation.”

An excellent argument can be made after this fashion: If you took just 10 authors of the same walk, generation, place, time, continent, and language and gave them just one controversial question to write about, what would be the chances that they would all write in complete agreement with one another? The Bible demonstrates its uniqueness by its consistent harmony. Such speaks to a common source, God. Paul wrote, “All Scripture is inspired by God” (2 Tim. 3:16). Not only must we believe it, we must also conform to its teachings.
